Opportunities and challenges in integrating VAC and VAW policies, services and programs: case study results from Cambodia, Papua New Guinea, Philippines, and Vietnam

A. Gevers, E. Day, G. Binder, I. Fitzgerald, Sujata Tuladhar, Melissa Alvarado, R. Harvey, M. Palitzyne
Background

- Multiple intersections between VAW-VAC
- Work in silo and different understanding
- Lack of evidence-based best practice models that integrate VAW and VAC services and programmes

Objective: to explore the opportunities and challenges for integrative VAC-VAW approaches in the East Asia and Pacific region
Methodology

- Primary focus on forms of VAC and VAW within spaces and relationships of trust
- Case studies in Cambodia, Papua New Guinea, Philippines, and Viet Nam
- Desk review
- Reflections and lessons learned process
- Joint study: UNICEF, UN Women, UNFPA
FINDINGS

- Few examples of purposeful or formal integration but they do exist

- Lack of quality, coordinated, and well-resourced services for both fields
FINDINGS

- Critical to address adolescent’s unique interests and needs – often a gap in both VAW and VAC approaches
- Working on shared goals, enables cooperation – such as age of consent
Specialisation and integration: the potential disadvantages and challenges of integrative approaches need to be carefully considered before proceeding with integration efforts
OPPORTUNITY

- VAW and VAC prevention (parenting, school-based)

- Countries to examine existing datasets from an intersectional perspective, develop research priorities on VAC-VAW intersections
OPPORTUNITY

- Open dialogue between the fields to build understanding on the intersections
Conclusion

- Need for more coordination among researchers and practitioners working on VAC and VAW
- Focus on life course approach
- Reflection on the study and the methodology
THANK YOU!!

Melissa Alvarado, Ending Violence against Women Programme Manager,
UN Women Regional Office for Asia and the Pacific melissa.alvarado@unwomen.org

Sujata Tuladhar, Gender Based Violence Technical Specialist
UNFPA Asia and Pacific Regional Office stuladhar@unfpa.org

Rachel Harvey, Regional Advisor, Child Protection
UNICEF East Asia and Pacific Regional Office
rharvey@unicef.org

Gerda Binder, Senior Regional Advisor, Gender and Development Advisor
UNICEF East Asia and Pacific Regional Office
gbinder@unicef.org