Current state of CSV evidence

(SVRI scoping review of CSA evidence - 2011-2021)

- Lack of a cohesive evidence base for the field
- Methodological and knowledge gaps
- Ethical concerns
- Intersectional approach is mostly absent
- Evidence from HICs dominates the field

The background is a light teal color with various abstract, hand-drawn style elements in the corners. Top-left: a red shape, a teal starburst, and a teal wavy line. Top-right: pink and yellow cloud-like shapes with teal outlines. Bottom-left: a white brushstroke arc, a red cloud-like shape, and a yellow shape. Bottom-right: a red rectangular shape, a teal starburst, a white circle, and a pink circular shape.

The gaps provide basis for a collaborative, participatory, inclusive and collective decision-making process of setting research priorities and agenda for child sexual violence (CSV) in low- and middle-income countries (LMICs)

For too long research agendas have been set by too few, often the loudest, most senior in the room.

Why a shared research agenda?

1

Identify evidence gaps

2

Assist research planning and fundraising

3

Serve as an advocacy tool

4

Serve as a monitoring tool

Adaptation to incorporate qualitative methods - to reach out to groups under-represented groups e.g. LGBTQI+ people, people with disabilities, indigenous people and to include child and survivor participation

Domain 1: Understanding CSV, top priorities (n=200)

1. What are the best strategies to help break the cycle of abuse/intergenerational trauma for CSV survivors?
2. What are the risk and protective factors in areas where CSV is highly prevalent, and how can insights into these interrelated factors help shape the design of prevention interventions?

Domain 2: Responding to CSV, top priorities (n=197)

1. What are effective ways to address barriers to disclosure and reporting of CSV, including decreasing the stigma of CSV and providing children and youth with safe environments for disclosure?
2. What activities and interventions are effective at increasing reporting of CSV by boys and men?

Domain 3: Preventing CSV, top priorities (n=189)

1. What types of interventions targeting social norms have proven effective in decreasing occurrences of CSV?
2. What are effective strategies and interventions for preventing CSV perpetration among children and teens?

Domain 4: Research Methods in CSV, top priorities (n=181)

1. How can we best facilitate CSV survivor participation in CSV research while minimizing adverse outcomes, including emotional outcomes (secondary trauma, shame, self-blame, other forms of distress), vulnerability to others (threats, retaliation, revictimization), and other potential adverse consequences of disclosure?
2. Given that CSV is under-reported, what alternative data collection strategies and/or proxy outcomes could be used to help assess the effectiveness of CSV prevention interventions?

Domain 5: CSV in marginalized populations, top priorities (n=175)

1. How do CSV prevention and response interventions need to be adapted for different groups of vulnerable and marginalized children and youth?
2. What are the barriers to reporting CSV and accessing CSV response services and how do they differ among different groups of vulnerable and marginalized children and youth?
